

Education in ancient Egypt during the fourth thousand years before Christ

Dr. Fatima Ali Bakhshween
Associated professor of ancient history
Princess Nora University
Faculty of Arts – History Department

Summary of work paper

Egypt enjoyed great civilization in ancient times in all fields. Education was one of such fields that Egyptian cared greatly for in ancient times.

Education started since childhood when parents teach their children all educational values, code of ethics and concepts of life. The learner is promoting in education's stages. The learner is learning reading, writing and craft in which he/she is going to be specialized in.

The aim behind education was to be involved in the members of the ruling family or to get religious position or to learn how to solve daily life's problems like the problems of agriculture. Therefore the motivation for improving the social and living conditions was the main reason behind learning.

This work paper is discussing the importance of Education in ancient Egypt and the role of education, education tools, education systems and syllabuses.