

WOMEN'S RIGHTS IN ISLAM

Masha'el Rashed Muhammad Al Dabbas

Faculty member in the department of Islamic studies in the Faculty of Designs and Arts at the Princess Nora Bint Abdul Rahman University, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

Abstract:

Importance of this topic and the reasons for selecting it:

Verily, women are half of society, in fact they are the entire society; for, they bring forth the future generations, and hence, taking an interest in their issues is mandatory.

2. To clarify how Islam honors women from the perspective of the prophetic traditions of the Prophet Muhammad.

3. To demonstrate the position of women in Islam and allow Muslim women to experience how Islam uplifted them out of oppression, preserved their virtuousness, protected their dignity, and gave them all of their inherent rights; and how it raised their value and dignity as daughters, wives, mothers, and an active members of society, and of course before all of that, respecting her humanity.

4. As a response to those fallacies that have been brought up about Muslim women, and a clarification of the truth concerning these matters.

The Methodology of Research:

The preparation of this research required the use of an integrative approach, which was represented in a collection of academic approaches:

1. An Inductive Approach: Establishing the veracity of the thesis from the evidence presented in the prophetic traditions of the Prophet Muhammad.

2. An Analytical Approach: to be applied to all of the paper's chapters.

3. A Qualitative approach: recording the prophetic traditions and all the various narrations of each single tradition and the statements of the scholars regarding as to their authenticity.

4. A Narrative Approach: A critical examination of all the narrations of the prophetic traditions used as support for the thesis along with the statements of the scholars of Islam concerning them.

5. A Deductive Approach: Deduction of the final conclusions based upon the chains of narrations and contents of the prophet traditions after studying them ( in depth ).

Research Paper Outline:

This research paper consists of an abstract, introduction, main chapters, and conclusion.

Introduction:

The conditions of women before the advent of Islam.

Chapter One:

What has been mentioned concerning the honoring of daughters and sisters in Islam.

Chapter Two:

What has been mentioned concerning the honoring of wives in Islam.

Chapter Three:

What has been mentioned concerning the honoring of mothers in Islam.

Conclusion:

The conclusion will mention the most substantial results from the research and suggestions for further work. Indices